W Hurst & Son is a retail department store which was first established in 1859 on the Isle of Wight.

Since then, they have expanded, and now have 6 department stores on the Island, selling a diverse range of products from tools to household goods and gardening equipment.

We interviewed Managing Director, Peter Hartnell, and discussed the services and support Moore (South) has supplied to one of the Island’s biggest retail businesses since 2013.

As a business, you have been working with Moore (South) for 6 years. When you first approached Moore (South) what services did you plan to use?

We started using Moore (South) as our accountants and business advisers in 2013. At first, we contacted them for use of their accountancy and auditing services. Over the years, our business flourished and we then found ourselves asking Moore (South) for access to more of their core services. As your business grows, it is great to have easy access to a local business adviser here on the Isle of Wight.
How would you describe the relationship with Moore (South) you have built over the years?

From the beginning, we have enjoyed a friendly and professional relationship with all members of staff. They have really got to know our business and provided a great deal of advice to enable us to plan for the future.

As a successful business, why do you think a business with its own finance department should use external business advisers?

As any growing business will concede, the secret of its success lies in meticulous, strategic planning. Moore (South) has helped guide us to systemise our finance function by assisting us with the development of our accounting software and POS system. They have liaised with our system provider to ensure that we are fully prepared for 'Making Tax Digital'. By helping to systemise and modernise our finance function, they have been able to interpret our financial data and put it into meaningful and actionable business intelligence. They have helped to alleviate any worries that would have existed and have freed up a lot of our time if we had to tackle this as a business on our own.
“Moore (South) has been our auditor since 2001. They have always had a proactive approach and given us a great deal of specialist insight, support and guidance when needed”.
